THE Rev. George W. Sweeney, who has been spending the holidays in Illinois, after an absence of ten days, returned yesterday evening. He will preach on Sunday as usual.

Ar the residence of the bride's mother, in South Memphis, on Thursday night, Mr. Louis P. Hoffman was united in marriage to Miss Ida Lowder. The ceremony was private, only the relatives and a few intimate friends being present. The groom is a promising young business man, while the bride is a well-known belle of South Memphis. The presents were numerous and elegant.

after yesterday at the residence of his kinsman, Bun F. Price, of this city, aged seventy years. His life was one of experience in all the warlike troubles our country has passed through in the memory of several generations. When Gen. Jackson called for troops for the campaign against the Indians in Florida, long years ago, Col. Price, then a youth, was among the last to "ground" his musket. And again, when his native State, in 1801, summoned her men of nerve and courage to come forward and wage battle for independence, he promptly stepped forward at a "shoulder arms" for the Confederacy, as a private in the "rear rank." When Gens. Lee and Johnston delivered their swords at Appomattox and Greensboro, the old private sheathed his as a colonel. He bore his honors meekly, never paraded his griefs, and died a just and honorable man.

The Abbott opera company last night presented Donizetti's beautiful opera, Linda di Chamouni, at Leubrie's Theater, to a fine house. The opening chorus was wanting in spirit, but the audience was delighted with the opera before the close of the first act. Emma Abbott sang "Linda" was the control of the control of the first act.

The grand dancing hall of the Peabody Hotel was the scene last evening of a brilliant social event—a ball given in honor of the visiting Kansas City Knights and ladies by St. Elmo Commandery of Memphis.

Five hundred invitations of the most elegant design were issued, sixty of which were reserved for the Kansas City Commandery, and as many more for St. Elmo Of the remainder 250 were sent out to members of other commanderies in the city, an informal invitation being given the Mozart Society as an acknowledgment of the appreciation of the Sir Knights for the concert the evening previous. At 9 o'clock carriages began to arrive, and at 10 the dancing hall and the corridors leading to it were well filled. At 11 o'clock a large number of young ladies came in with their escorts from the Theater. The dancing began a little befere 10 o'clock. The programme was as follows:

delighted with the opera before the close of the first act. Emma Abbott sang "Linda" with her usual success, and was frequently applauded. Her dressing was the most bewitching of the week. Zelda Seguin, who sings a solobehind the scenes before her catree, was warmly welcomed when she revealed herself as "Pierotti." William Castle made an excellent "Carlo." and Tagliapietra's "Antonio" was beyond reproach, though he is better fitted for parts such as he took on previous nights. One should always hear him last as "Rigoletto."
The most delightful surprise of the evening was the singing of William Broderick, the "Prefect," in a duet with Tagliapietra, and again when asking the blessing of heaven upon "Linda," as she is about to leave the vale of Chamouni.
He surpassed the best effort he has ever made in Memphis. The remainder of the cast was fair and the chorus excellent.
The house was unstinted in its praise.

site sides of the upright pole. A dozen boys would catch hold of the bars and begin to skate around, after the manner of sailors winding a capstan. The result would be that the boy near the pole would be moving in a circle at a very moderate pace, while those on the outer edges were whirling around at a terrific speed, and if they chanced to let go of the "whizzer" they would be hurled forward as if shot from a catapult. One lad loosened his grasp, was hurled forward as if shot grasp, was hurled forward about fifty feet, and after sliding most of the distance on the fice, went home with the entire left side of his face almost devoid of skin and bleeding profusely. Another boy tripped, and was carried off with a sprained wrist and broken knee-pan.
